ROBERT M. WESMAN, M.D.

1 I, Sanford Schneider, M.D., FAAN, FAAP, declare:

2 1. I am submitting this Supplemental Declaration following my review of the 3 Declarations of D. Alan Shewmon, M.D., Alieta Eck, M.D., and Sharleen Bangura, R.N., as well as 4 Plaintiffs' Opposition to Defendants' Motion for Summary Adjudication of Jahi McMath's First 5 Cause of Action for Personal Injuries. I understand that these documents were filed in this case in 6 support of the plaintiffs' allegation that Jahi McMath is not dead.

7 2. As I set forth in my previous declaration, the Guidelines for the Determination of 8 Brain Death in Infants and Children: An Update of the 1987 Task Force Recommendations
9 ("Guidelines"), represent the "accepted medical standards" for determining brain death in a child
10 such as J. McMath. Under California's Uniform Determination of Death Act, a child is considered 11 legally and medically deceased when the neurologic diagnostic criteria, i.e., the "accepted medical 12 standards", in the Guidelines are fulfilled. Again, the only accepted neurologic criteria for 13 assessing J. McMath's brain function is a brain death evaluation performed in accordance with the 14 accepted medical standards in the Guidelines. There are no recognized substitutes for the accepted 15 medical standards for determining brain death. Unlike in professional negligence cases, where the 16 standard of care may be met by more than one medically accepted method of treatment or 17 diagnosis, in the determination of brain death there is only one accepted methodology. This has 18 been the case for decades.

19 3. Having reviewed the plaintiffs' papers, it is evident that the plaintiffs now concede
20 that J. McMath fulfilled the accepted medical standards for brain death when she was declared
21 brain dead and deceased in December 2013, following the three separate brain death evaluations
22 performed by Robin Shanahan, M.D., Robert Heidersbach, M.D, and Paul Fisher, M.D. Plaintiffs 23 further concede that no errors were made in the application of the accepted medical standards to J.
24 McMath in December 2013 by the three physicians.

25 4. Plaintiffs believe that sometime in the spring of 2014, J. McMath managed to 26 "reverse" her death. They believe that J. McMath no longer fulfills the criteria for brain death.

27 5. Yet plaintiffs failed to provide any reliable and competent medical evidence that 28 supports their belief that she is not dead. J. McMath has not undergone a brain death evaluation

1 pursuant to the accepted medical standards set forth in the Guidelines since she was legally 2 declared deceased in December 2013.

3           6. Not only has J. McMath not undergone a brain death evaluation since Dr. Fisher's 4 examination on December 23, 2013, according to the plaintiffs' submissions in this case, the most 5 recent testing performed on J. McMath were the studies performed at University Hospital in 6 September 2014, which I addressed in my initial declaration. In other words, the plaintiffs have no
7 new theories or evidence that support their belief that J. McMath is not dead. Nothing has changed
8 since J. McMath's body was discharged to her mother's custody in early January 2014. There is 9 nothing in plaintiffs' papers that suggests there has been a change in her medical condition since 10 her death. For the past 3.6 years, J. McMath body has received total body support. A machine
11 breathes for her body. Once the respirator is withdrawn, the corpse will sustain circulatory 12 collapse. Nourishment continues to be provided through gastrostomy tube inserted through her 13 abdominal wall. The body is maintained on full endocrine replacement medications that serves as 14 replacements for vital hormones, including cortisone, vassopressin, thyroxine, and 15 mineralcorticoids. J. McMath continues to receive 24-hour a day nursing care. The fact that J.
16 McMath's corpse has remained intact (not decomposed) is due to the continued extraordinary level 17 medical resources that she receives, not because there has been a change in her condition.

18           7. It is perplexing and even disingenuous that the plaintiffs continue to advance their 19 belief that J. McMath is not dead even though they have known since her initial determination of 20 death that there is only one accepted standard for assessing brain death: a brain death evaluation in 21 accordance with the accepted medical standards in the Guidelines. They conceded this during the 22 hearing before Judge Grillo on December 24, 2013. In October 2014, Dr. Fisher informed the 23 plaintiffs in so many words that absent a brain death evaluation in accordance with the accepted
24 medical standards in the Guidelines there was no legal or medical basis to revisit J. McMath's 25 death. The plaintiffs in this case have had more than three years to obtain reliable and competent 26 evidence that J. McMath no longer meets the neurologic criteria for brain death, yet no such 27 evidence is forthcoming. Based on the information I have received to date, they decline and/or 28 refuse to submit J. McMath to the appropriate examination.

1           8.       Plaintiffs' belief that J. McMath is not dead appears to be based solely on the 2 declaration of D. Alan Shewmon, M.D., and to a much lesser extent the declarations of Alieta Eck,
3 M.D., and Sharleen Bagurra, R.N., which I will address below. There is nothing new in Dr.
4 Shewmon's declaration that he did not address in his declaration dated December 10, 2014. Dr.
5 Shewmon continues to base his opinion on matters that no reputable expert in brain death would 6 rely upon in forming an opinion as to whether a child has suffered brain death under California law,
7 e.g., video recordings taken by family members, the purported onset of puberty, and select imaging
8 studies that are not a substitute for the accepted medical standards. Dr. Shewmon's opinion that J.
9 McMath is not dead is inconsistent with California law and the mainstream's consensus as to the 10 methodology of diagnosing brain death. Dr. Shewmon fails to reconcile how he can conclude that 11 J. McMath does not meet the accepted medical standards for determining brain death when the 12 accepted medical standards have not been applied to J. McMath since December 2013.

13           9.       Dr. Shewmon's conclusion that J. McMath no longer meets the accepted medical 14 standards for determining brain death, without having first subjected J. McMath to the appropriate 15 brain evaluation per the Guidelines, is a violation of the standard of care for pediatric neurologists, 16 a breach of professional ethics, and a violation of California law, which dictates that the clinical 17 assessment of brain death must be determined in accordance with the accepted medical standards.
18 Pediatric neurologists with expertise in assessing brain death should recognize that a lawful and 19 valid brain death determination can only be made by a qualified physician who is familiar with the 20 patient's complete medical history, and who has performed the requisite neurological examination
21 and apnea tests in accordance with the specific parameters of Guidelines. Clinical determinations 22 of brain death require two examinations by two different physicians and two apnea tests. Dr.
23 Shewmon appears to concede that J. McMath would continue to meet the criteria for brain death if 24 the plaintiffs subjected her to the appropriate brain death evaluation.

25           9.       Dr. Alieta Eck, J. McMath's internist, provided a declaration that is devoid of any 26 showing that she has the requisite specialized knowledge, skill, experience, training, or education 27 sufficient to render an opinion as to whether J. McMath has brain function. A determination of 28 brain death can only be made by physicians with special education, training, knowledge and

1 expertise in the legal and medical requirements for determining brain death in the State of 2 California. Dr. Eck failed to demonstrate that she has any knowledge as to how brain death is 3 declared in California, e.g., the CUDDA, the accepted medical standards, the Guidelines, etc. Dr.
4 Eck did not indicate that she has reviewed and is familiar with McMath's medical history, the State
5 of California's laws on brain death, and the accepted medical standards for determining brain 6 death, i.e, the Guidelines. Dr. Eck did not demonstrate that she has the knowledge, training, or 7 experience that is required to provide an opinion as to whether J. McMath's movements are 8 purposeless spinal reflexive movements that are consistent with brain death versus volitional
9 responses to commands indicative of brain activity. As stated in my previous declaration, J.
10 McMath has exhibited purposeless spinal reflexive movements, with and without tactile 11 stimulation, since she was pronounced deceased in December 2013. J. McMath's physicians at 12 Children's Hospital Oakland and St. Peter's consistently deemed the movements to be purposeless
13 spinal reflexive movements. The Guidelines state that the clinical differentiation of spinal 14 responses from retained motor responses associated with brain activity requires expertise. Dr. Eck 15 has not demonstrated that she has the expertise to distinguish purposeless spinal reflexive
16 movements from activity associated with brain function. Finally, observation of a patient is not a 17 substitute to a brain death evaluation performed in accordance with the accepted medical standards 18 in the Guidelines. No reputable and qualified physician would reasonably rely on the matters that 19 Dr. Eck relied upon in opining that J. McMath is not dead

20       10. Sharleen Bangura, R.N., is a nurse, not a physician. Ms. Bangura declares that she 21 has observed McMath to be "alert" and responsive to commands. Again, a determination of brain 22 death can only be made by physicians with special education, training, knowledge and expertise in 23 the accepted medical standards for assessing brain death. Ms. Bagura has no education, training or 24 expertise in assessing brain death. She failed to demonstrate that she has any knowledge how brain 25 death is determined in the State of California. Ms. Bangura failed to demonstrate that she has 26 reviewed and is familiar with McMath's medical history. Ms. Bangura failed to demonstrate that 27 she has the knowledge, training, or experience required to form an opinion as to the medical basis
28 for her observations of J. McMath.
